Music festivals offer fans a great opportunity to sample a virtual smorgasbord of sounds with day- or weekend-long experiences, but they can be expensive.

For example, Coachella, held in Indio, Calif., recently announced the prices for the 2026 festival, starting at $599 for weekend 1 and $549 for weekend 2 and maxing out at $1,299 for VIP passes weekend 1 and $1,199 for weekend 2 VIP passes.

In stark contrast is the Dreamy Draw Music Festival, set for Sept. 7-8 at the Scottsdale Civic Center. The two-day, three-stage music and arts festival is notably smaller than Coachella, but so is the price tag.

Presale pricing is $135 for the general admission weekend and $220 for VIP weekend. A single day general admission pass is $90, while a weekend GA pass is $145. It's $180 for a VIP single day pass and $250 VIP weekend, $400 for an artist single day pass, and $700 for an artist weekend pass, which includes side-stage viewing and access to the all-inclusive Rattlesnake Social Club with complimentary food and drinks, a merch package and more.

(Tickets go on sale Wednesday, Aug. 6 with presale tickets available prior to that date by texting PRESALE to 844-908-3781.)

"Our goal is to create the best party for the best price," RJ Largay, founder of event production company, Oh Wow Company, said in a statement. "The cost to see your favorite band, whether at a concert or at a festival, has grown tremendously. We're pushing back on that and creating one of the best values to see top-tier bands during prime season in Scottsdale."

This year's just-announced lineup will include performances by the Lumineers, Vampire Weekend, Father John Misty, Marcus King Band, Saint Motel, Houndmouth, Thee Sacred Souls, and Local Natives, with supporting performances from Hovvdy, Richy Mitch & the Coal Miners, Ashe, Wells Ferrari, a DJ set from Chromeo, and Arizona's own Asiris and others.

After two sold-out years, the festival is expanding from 8,000 to 20,000 capacity with additional city blocks and a bigger main stage.

Music fans reacted to the news of this year's festival on Instagram.

"I want @fatherjohnmisty to sign my forehead," one fan wrote.

"I AM SO HAPPY," another fan added.

"I'm so excited! This lineup is legendary. Can't wait to get play with some of my favorite acts. Thank you @dreamydrawfest ❤️," wrote Silver Lake Rodeo, one of the support acts on the bill.

Hii Craig! Would you be interested in an exclusive for a music festival, headlined by an artist that starts with “lumin” and ends with “neers” - among other major names in indie rock/americana

Craig Rosen • 2:21 PM

Hi, possibly...please send it along.

Both work. Thanks. Wondering if there's a way to make this stand out as more than just another festival lineup announcement...

Angela Anderson (She/Her) • 4:04 PM

another angle could maybe be the pricepoint, how this festival offers a $145 GA Weekend.

from founder RJ Largay - "The cost to see your favorite band, whether at a concert or at a festival, has grown tremendously.... [Dreamy Draw] is one of the best values to see top-tier bands during prime season in Scottsdale.”

Angela Anderson (She/Her) • 4:49 PM

“$145 to see _ and ___ in one weekend. How Dreamy Draw music festival gets it right”

Craig Rosen • 8:13 PM

That might work. I'm really looking for things that might move the needle in terms of traffic.

Angela Anderson (She/Her) • 8:54 PM

Perhaps the lineup could sell you on that...😎 can I get you to agree to holding details until 10am MST if I send it over?
